

edacity's geekStarter Recognition and logo usage

All publications, presentations and public messages including, but not limited to, radio and television interviews, newspaper articles, and so forth arising from activities supported by edacity's geekStarter program must acknowledge the support of MindFuel as well as Anonymous Donor, RBC, NSERC, and Motorola Solutions Foundation - as specified at time of onboarding.

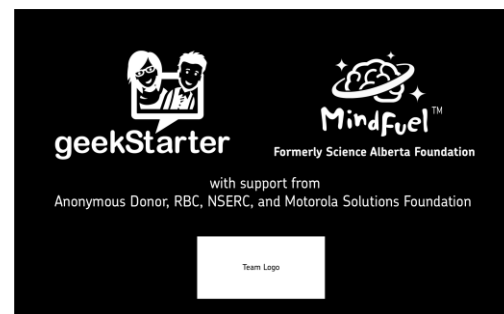

When talking about geekStarter in person, in recordings or in print

When speaking about geekStarter – e.g., for a news interview or in a video, etc., - always refer to it as “edacity's geekStarter program”.

If you are creating documents, presentations, signage or wearables (together known as collateral), please follow these guidelines

Program Support logos

Any geekStarter collateral must display the program supporters as described below.

One colour

Because the logos are made of opposing colours, anytime the logos are used together they must be in their one-colour versions: either black on light backgrounds, or white on dark backgrounds.

Formats

The grouped logo is available in the following formats:

- EPS
- PNG
